One Nears Riches After 29 Fail Swim

$22,600 Jackpot Awaits Lumsden At 32-Mile Mark

TORONTO (CP)—While crowds gathered to cheer his stamina and perseverance, Cliff Lumsden, 24-year-old Toronto swimmer, stroked today past the 24-mile mark in the Canadian National Exhibition's 32-mile marathon

He passed it in the waterfront course at 3.43 p.m., EDT (12.43 a.m., PDT), only remaining swimmer of 30 who plunged into 54-degree water at 1.10 a.m. He had been in the water 14 hours, 32 minutes:

The swim could earn Lumsden $22,600. If he completes the swim he'll get $15,000 of the $25,000 in prize-money offered by CNE. The other $10,000 will not be distributed. But more riches could be

An unidentified supporter of-fered an additional $5,000 if he completes the grind, and To-ronto Star will pay $200 for each of the last 13 miles he Joan Cooke, Lumsden's fi-ancee, and swimmer Marilyn Bell were in an escorting motorboat to cheer him along until the 20th mile. Then they re-turned to shore.

EGYPTIAN QUITS

Lumsden became the sole contestant left in the race when Hamed Mustafa, a powerfully built Egyptian, quit at the 14-mile mark at 9.30 a.m., 8½ hours after the swim began.

CROSSWORD PRIZE NOW $475; WASH WAS HARD

The prize for the Times' weekly crossword contest is approaching a new record. For the sixteenth week crossworders failed to come up with a correct solution and to-day's puzzle is worth $475 for a bonus winner. The bonus, of $450, goes to a winner who is also a regular subscriber of $450, goes to a winner who is also a regular subscriber to the paper.

An answer that was so simple and straightforward that puzzlers apparently couldn't believe it proved the biggest stickler in last week's puzzle. It was the word "wash" for "After a quick——one may feel a little uncomfortable." The answers to this ranged from dash through lash, hash, gash, rash and mash. As the composer explains, the very fact that you could have a leisurely one, as opposed to a quick one, rules out the answer "dash" as well as most of the others.

The others,

Webster Urges Session To Talk Health Plan

CCF Leader Calls on Premier Bennett To Call House in Speech at Squamish

By TOM GOULD, Times Legislative Reporter

SQUAMISH, B.C. — Co-operative Commonwealth Federation leader, Arnold Webster, Thursday called for a special session of the Provincial Legislature this month to discuss a national health plan.

Webster, one of four CCF speakers at a Squamish by-election meeting attended by 35 persons, referred to a statement made by Premier Bennett at Bralorne Tuesday that election of Socred candidate Donald Robinson would give him a mandate to go to Ottawa in October to press for an immediate national health scheme. "If Mr. Bennett really wants to go down armed with the authority of the people of British Columbia, let him call the leads when the such fantastic statements as Gibson has."

Ghosts of Yalta

It is difficult to believe that the United States expected or even desired Britain's agreement to such an unwise plan. Certainly the people of the free nations must always know the policies of their governments and, if necessary, veto them. But diplomacy becomes difficult if not impossible when every exchange of views leadng to such policies must be revealed and when, as a consequence, the nego tiators bind themselves publicly to unalterable positions on every issue

The American suggestion that some agreed record be published, in addition to the pretty detailed information already given to the publimay do some mischief. When Britain properly objects, some people in the United States may imagine that there something to hide. The mischief will be temporary and doubtless forgotten as the general explorations of Geneva soon lead to the more diffi-cult stage of actual bargaining.

Weakening Municipal Muscles

MONTREAL'S MAYOR JEAN Drapeau has called attention to the loss of power on the part of muni-cipalities and described this trend as evidence of the decadence of the democratic idea.

To this he adds the argument: "If, in a short time, municipalities are de-graded to the point of being solely local administrators completely controlled and wholly supported by the state, they will have lost their reason And after the municipalities, it will be the destiny of the provinces to submit to a similar fate. Several factors have contributed to the reduction in importance of the nunicinal council. The complexities of present day living have brought the senior governments closer to the people in such fields as social services. Public horizons, moreover, have expanded beyond the once acceptable limits of municipal boundaries. But probably the more important changes have been Mnancial, and the apparent difficulty experienced by elected municipal figures to plan and follow policy rather than improvise, from day to day.

The Leopard and the Spots

THE DECISION OF THE CO-nadian members should make their speeches in English whenever possible translate easily into French. This explanation, however, has not been generally accepted by the press of Canada, nor is it likely to be swallowed by the people of Quebec. The events leading up to the change have been too pointed for their significance to be mistaken.

The plain fact is that a succession of provocative statements by prominent CCF officials has made their party name unpopular in Quebec. A change of label is seen as the best hope of attracting French-Canadian support at the polls. Thus the party, in the eastern province, will now be known as the Social Democratic Party.

The foot-in-mouth remarks that led to this drastic measure were many and varied. CCF members of Parliament have got into Hansard with quotes that stirred resentment in the French-speaking province. For instance, the recommendation of one Ottawa CCF'er that French Ca-

Real property taxation—the chief independent source of revenue for municipalities—reaches limits. In place of seeking other sources within their own jurisdiction, municipalities turn to senior governments for greater aid. And as they succeed in their supplications, they automatically come under the wider influence of provincial and federal authorities. He who pays the piper expects to call

Mcreover, the municipal government loses strength in direct ratio to the degree in which elected municipal officials fail to prepare themselves for the job of government at the el closest to the people.

Mayor Drapeau probably had such matters in mind when he advanced his argument. His case merits serious study, but it is dcubtful that it will turn municipalitieswhich admittedly are having a diffi-cult time financially—from their continuing approaches to higher govern-ments for help. When Saskatchewan's Premier

Douglas denounced Mr. St. Laurent's tax concessions to Quebec as "pathetic appeasement" he was not winning Quebec friends or influencing French speaking people. Similarly offensive statements by Mr. Hazen Argue, the CCF member for Assinibola, and other socialist spokesmen, helped to convert the CCF name to "mud" as far as Quebec is concerned.

The new nomenclature may catch on better but it cannot work miracles. In the long run a party will be judged by what it stands for and what it does, rather than by what it And whether a name is used to hide purpose or to clarify it, it will be nonetheless worthless as a vote-getter unless the adherents of the party it represents can convince the public that they could form a better government than anyone else. That, for the CCF, in Quebec, will be, to say the least, difficult.

The demonstrators have forgotten, or overlooked, the important point that the Russian tourists came to Canada at this country's invitation, following a widely publicized tour of the United States. And they apparently have failed to understand that when Canada has guests, certain re-sponsibilities are imposed upon Canadians to treat them as guests.

The occasion of the current tour is not one for the expression of high feeling on rival ideologies.

Official arrangements for the visit have apparently left much to be desired. That, too, is unfortunate, but not so embarrassing as the behaviour of certain Canadians who have failed to understand their position as hosts.

LILLOOET-WHAT POINT?

Anyone who has followed British Copuzzled over the strategy of the Liberal Party in opening up the Lillooet riding at this time. Without expressing any opinion as to the merits of the criticisms opinion as to the merits of the critecisms which have been levelled against the government with respect to forest management licences which are now under consideration of the Chief Justice of British Columbia, it is difficult to imagine what the Liberals can possibly gain by precipitating a costly by election.

To begin with if Mr. Gibson is reelected it will not change the strength of his party representation in the House and he runs the distinct risk of being defeated which would reduce the mem-bership of the Liberals in the Legislature to four. Further, if he should be re-elected it will prove nothing more, to me at least, than that a plurality of the voters in Lillooet wish him to remain as

The situation is all the more inexplicable when one considers that what-ever the merits may be of the criticism ever the merits may be of the criticism that has been levelled against the government, it fell heir to the legislation which was passed by the Liberal-controlled Coalition and furthermore it appears that when the present government came into power they considered the report that had been made five years ago by the Chief Justice and requested that he embark upon the review of the situaby the Chief Justice and requested that he embark upon the review of the situa-tion but according to press reports the Chief Justice advised that he did not con-sider it necessary at that time and sug-

Now, in view of this situation it is difficult to know how. Mr. Gibson justifies his impulsive action in resigning his seat. It would seem that he would have been in a stronger position if he had awaited the outcome of the report and then, depending on its content, he might have considered making some issue based on the findings of the commissioner and the subsequent action of the government upon such findings.

The chatter in the cafeteria at mealtime not only is earsplitting but strangely suggestive of what the confusion of tongues in the Tower of Babel must have been. QUESTION MARK

Last week, the hunting season for news opened at United Nations after a protracted summer-long lull. The Sub-committee on Disarmament, which last time had met during May in London, opened its fifty-first session here on August 29 in a mood of tense expecta-

A huge question mark has been hanging over the international horizon ever since the heads of the four leading powers met in Geneva a few weeks ago, keeping met in Geneva a few weeks ago, keeping the world wondering whether Russia will back up her grandiloquent protestations of peace with tangible deeds.

The opportunity for a realistic expression of the much vaunted "Geneva Spirit" was right here, around the conference table, when the chief delegates of Great Britain, Canada, France, Russia and the United States were resuming the and the United States were resuming the and the United States were resulting the seemingly endless discussions about out-lawing wars by the logical and simple means of cutting down the size of the huge armed forces and by controlling the reckless use of murderous weapons, WORLD'S ATTENTION For this very reason the attention of the whole world is now focused on the deliberations of the Subcommittee on Disarmament at the United Nations.

Participating in these momentous de-bates are Harold Stassen, U.S. "Secretary for Peace" and Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. chief U.S. delegate to the UN; the youthful British Minister of State, Andoomed, being decadent.

THIS is being written from a unique of the U.S. delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., when he reminded his colleagues that this was the fifty-first session of the subcommittee. In other words, fifty sessions had produced no agreement and the need for patience could not be more strikingly demonstrated.

The press not being admitted to the

The press not being admitted to the subcommittee's executive sessions, we thought that an interview with one of the pasticipants would elicit more information than the official communiques are providing for the watchful reporters standing guard outside the closed doors of the conference room.

Actually the deliberations of the subcommittee do not involve any state seg-rets, the revelation of which would en-danger the security of the world. Mr. Paul Martin, with whom we arranged an interview, most obligingly answered every question with utmost frankness and without the affected secretiveness of UNIVERSAL DISARMAMENT

He admitted that the subcommittee was proceding at a rather slow pace, but that the problem of universal disarma-ment was the greatest issue facing man-kind and it would, therefore, be presumptuous to expect a solution on short notice. Despite the fact that there seems to be a wide gap between the El proposal of inspection and the Russian plan, Mr. Martin is very optimistic about cutcome distant as it may be. is satisfied that the deliberations of the subcommittee will ultimately result in nsiderable benefit to all concerned.

The Russians are hedging on the issue of the American proposal for aerial as well as ground inspection and the exchange of "blueprints" on armed strength between the countries, Mr. Martin said, and prefer to talk reduction in arms first and inspection second.

Meanwhile there seems to be general agreement on proposed levels of armed manpower of the nations, embodied in the latest Soviet plan: 1.500,000 for the United States, the Soviet Union and Communist China; 650,000 each for Britain and France and about 150,000 to 200,000 for other countries.

CANADA'S STRENGTH

At this point, Paul Martin remarked that Canada's armed strength, as per March 31, 1955, figures consists of 19.027 in the Navy, 49,409 in the Army and 49,461 in the Air Force, a total of 118,077 plus 56.897 in the Reserve Forces, a figure below the suggested level of 200,000. What reduction Canada may achieve in its military strength, the head of the Canadian delegation said, will depend on what the Government will deem safe for

In conclusion the Canadian spokes-man emphasized that if the sessions of this committee will have achieved nothing more than eliciting how far the Russians will go in giving consistency to the high sounding assurances, given in Geneva, of mending their ways in the international field, much will have been contributed in clearing up misunderstandings that divide the world.

Somehow the retiring host at Carey Castle never impressed me that Way. He was Clarence Wallace first—a person who carried his office well, but one who was too attached to people to cease being one of them himself. He wore a stiff shirt often enough, but it was never stuffed.

I like to think of the odd occasions on which he invited newspaper folk up to Government House. There was nothing formal about the affairs. You wandered around talking to people and when you turned, you'd find your host in the group, taking part in the easy conversation, joining in the jokes and as often as not poking fun at himself.

HOW GLANDULAR FEVER SPREADS When I was a young man years ago, some inspired person wrote "There are microbes in kisses—the dear little things." Now comes Col. Robert J. The doctor got to puzzling why infectious mononucleosis did not spread from one room mate to another, and did not spread through a ward as would colds or any other infections with a virus.

Then he met a man who had glandular fever who admitted that some time before he came down with the fever, he had spent a day on a train, frequently kissing a woman com-panion. This woman came down with the fever a few days before the man did. Since then, Col. Hoagland has been able to obtain a history either of kissing or of drinking from the same bottle that has been used by others, Glandular fever is a fairly common trouble of younger persons. B. Burgemeister, of New York City, who for some time have been studying "difficult" children who show periodic outbursts of impul-sive or destructive behavior. The doctors re-ported the cases of 200 children whom they had studied. None of them had had any con-vulsions, but their electroencephalograms, or the records of the tiny electric currents which are constantly being formed in the brain, all showed abnormalities characteristic of a tendency to epilepsy.

These children were put on anti-convulsive medicines (usually dilantin), such as are used in the treatment of epilepsy, and 70 per cent of them immediately were better. Twenty-five per cent showed no improvement and 4 per cent were worse. In half of the cases the electroencephalographic record improved in its appearance, indicating that the behavior of the brain was more nearly

This does not mean that all children with behavior disorders have a tendency to epi-lepsy. Drs. Zimmerman and Burgemeister picked out for study and treatment only 200 special children out of 2,000 who were brought to them over the course of several years.

These stilldren with abnormal brain was as ald not respond well to psychotherapy, which

I have seen a number of such children in my practice, and usually in their cases I could find some forebears who were either a bit psychotic or had had epilepsy or, most commonly, had been violent people with a very bad temper. The bad temper in many of them seemed to be an equivalent of epilepsy. This doesn't mean, of course, that every epileptic is bad-tempered; many of them are

Further Talks on September 29;

Macmillan Wants Sectional Study

Victoria's new zoning by-law was tabled Thursday until Sept. 29 after a much quieter public hearing than was anticipated.

It was indicated that when council does lift it from the table it might be split into sections, each section given additional study and further hearings held.

A suggestion along those lines was made by Ald. Robert Macmillan. He moved that the town planning commission be thanked for its work in prepar

Ald. Geoff. Edgelow agreed with this plan, called it "safe and sound" and more likely to suit the ordinary citizen who hasn't had a chance to grasp the significance of the by-law in its present complicated size.

But council spiked the Macmillan motion temporarily by

BETWEEN TIMES

The gentleman who conducts the "Ask The Times" column on this page is a very erudite gentleman indeed. He is well-read, learned, conscientious, and has a memory calculated to send an elephant into a jealous rage.

And if there is anything our Ask The Times editor doesn't know, of his own personal knowledge, he knows where he can

If somebody asked our Ask the Times editor now long it would take to find a needle in a haystack, I am sure he would stack up a pile of hay, insert needle in same, and find it, all the while holding a stopwatch on himself.

I mention these facts about our Ask The Times editor so you will understand the amazement I felt when he approached me with a letter which, he said, he would prefer to have ME answer.

To the best of my knowledge, this is the first time he has ever reneged on a query. And I cannot understand why, because it is a very simple and straightforward query, as

"Ask the Times Editor,

As I mentioned above, this is a simple and straightforward query which deserves a simple and straightforward

And I would be glad to define FLOOGEL at this point, except I see I have run out of space.

How can a picker pack peaches while those cotton pickin' packers are on strike? They have a system in the Okanagan, said Peter, the produce clerk, pointing to a large apple box. Inside were nestled 25 lbs. of peaches offered at $2.49, which is a peachy price, if you will pardon me saying so.

Indirectly this new saving comes to you through the packers. You see, the pickers can't pack because they're picking and so they pile the peaches in boxes and ship them as far away as possible, (tell me if I am getting too technical for you) which means you'll preserve peaches at a new low price this year.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q.—"You mentioned backaches not long ago as taking a lot of joy out of life. What can be done about them?"

A.—Backaches can come from many conditions. The first thing to do is to have a physical checkup. If there is nothing wrong with health to account for them then you should think of the following possibilities: Poor posture can give you a backache because it places a strain on your muscles and ligaments. Lax abdominal muscles can do the same because the muscles cannot do their job in supporting internal organs, and thus place a strain on the back. Weak arches can give you a backache as well as a leg ache.

Canadians, on the other hand, do not eat turnips in any great quantity. So, the rutabaga festival is planned to change this sad lack in our diets and to make us turnip conscious.

Don't laugh—the people of Stratford are quite capable of making the turnip a national delicacy. Remember . . . it has only taken them three years to push their Shakespearean Festival to a spot where they can boast of a total attendance in this year's nine-week session, of 126,500.

In any case, whether the Rutabaga Festival is merely a flash of imagination or whether it develops into a stroke of genius what does it matter? With it, Stratford has proved, it can change its pace with ease and assurance.

Sounds delightfully refreshing, doesn't it? The sort of thing Will Shakespeare himself would have turned into liquid verse. Somehow, too, it gives me a sense of pride, for the whole thing has such a definite Canadian flavor

A trio of hostesses, Mrs. W. Hubbard, Mrs. G. Brethour and Miss Jean Campbell entertained at the Brethour home in Sidney recently for Saturday's bride-elect Miss Nan Leckey. years, a legend of culture has been built with its Shakespearean Festival. A nine-week season that grew out of the dreams and the imaginative belief. of a young Canadian producer.

With this year's season safely over and a box office net of $421,000 tucked away, Stratford has quietly announced that it will now have another festival. The date is set for September 26, with fun, frolic and the naming of a queen. The whole thing centres around the rutabaga which is just a high-class name for the turnip.

Stacked up against the Shakespearean Festival you might well say that the turnip is certainly down to earth. But it's a golden nugget to the people of western Ontario—richest turnip producing area in Canada. (If we are to believe them, they grow the biggest, best and most). Last year they marketed 2,000,000 bushels. So you can see that to Stratford, in the centre of the rich farmlands of western Ontario, the turnip is no laughling matter. And when they say they are going to have a Rutabaga Festival you can be certain it will be a success. They backed the imaginative young producer, Tom Patters son, to the limit, when he visualized a tent theatre on the hills show the back above the limit, when he visualized a tent theatre on the hills show the hill show the pays might eat. The citizens of Stratford opened their homes so the visitors to this comparatively small city might have a place to sleep. They helped errect the theatre on the plays might eat. Culture Assured—Stratford Pushes Agriculture

These volunteer services started when the Shakespeare Festival was in its infancy. When the great struggle was on to make it pay. They are still continued today. The festival is a community effort and every citizen in Stratford has a personal pride in its success.

That does not mean they are so steeped in culture they cannot turn to the fun and frolic of a rutubaga festival. They can—and they will—for here is another challenge that appeals to them.

Most of the turnip crop harvested on the rich western Ontario farmlands has been going to the United States, where it would seem, the people either have a more highly developed sense of taste or they are more down to earth in their eating habits. (You can take your pick).

Canadians on the other hand, do not eat turnips in any great in the community of the canadians on the other hand, do not eat turnips in any great.

It's a trait that is very often associated with persons. Which makes it all the more interesting when a city comes across with a pace change that shows a new side to its civic life.

During the pre-broadcast run-through of Person to Person, last week Ed Murrow was finding it a little difficult to get any talk out of Ricky, the young son of Dick Powell and June Allyson. So, Murrow said: "What would you do, Ricky, if I told you I had Davy Crockett right here in the studio?" To which Ricky replied: "If you really do, Identify tolk to him."

I'd rather talk to him Elia Kazan and Budd Schulberg, the director-writer team responsible for the Academy Award-winning film "On the Waterfront," were interested spectators the other day during the filming of Jackie Gleason's new fall series. Kazan and Schulberg are kicking around the possibility of making a movie with Electronicam, a new cocess which has permitted the Gleason show to be med without any breaks.

Joyce Randolph, who plays Art Carney's wife on e Gleason show is altar-bound. And finally, realism was carried too far on NRC-TV's Big Town last week when the script called for an actor to attack Mark Stevens with a broken bottle. The result—Stevens wound up with a gashed hand which required several stitches . . . WELL DONE!-Back in Winnipeg we knew a cleanfaced, tow-headed kid by the name of Albert Walker, Al, as we remembered him, was a fair-to-middlin' amateur figure skater. Last Sunday night we saw the kid again on television, that is—he was the deadpan comic of Ice Capades who climbed the boxes on the Ed Sullivan show while 30-odd million looked on. Obviously, the boy has

An answer that was so simple and straightforward that puzzlers apparently couldn't believe it proved the biggest stickler in last week's puzzle. It was the word "wash" for "After a quick—— one may feel a little uncomfortable." The answers to this ranged from dash through lash, hash, gash, rash and mash. As the composer explains, the very fact that you could have a leisurely one, as opposed to a quick one, rules out the answer "dash" as well as most of the others.

585-Lb. Tuna Wins Fish Classic

WEDGEPORT, N.S. (CP)—The United States won the 12th international tuna cup match today on the strength of a single fish—a 585-pounder landed last Wednesday. Seven teams, including a multi-nation British Commonwealth squad, competed in the three-day classic which turned out to be one of the poorest on record. Venezuela got the only other fish, a 277-pounder boated the same day the Americans got theirs.
